In over twenty years as a professional coach and trainer, Lindsay Grice's students have won at major shows in the United States and Canada. Starting her career on the hunter A circuit, she continues to actively compete in both English and western events, specializing now in the AQHA circuit, and is frequently in the winner's circle.

Lindsay judges horse shows and teaches her popular horsemanship clinics throughout Canada and into the United States, creating thinking horsemen of her students by teaching the "hows" and "whys" of riding.

Lindsay draws regularly on the sports psychology training she gained through coaching education. She is a certified Equine Canada coach as well as NCCP (multi sport) coach.

When asked what she loves about her job, Lindsay responds, "I love putting complex principles of riding into a language that riders can understand."

Lindsay has been a guest lecturer for the University of Guelph's Equine Behavior programs and regularly teaches weekend clinics for local breed associations and 4H clubs.
